

The NMCGA presents the Linda Davis Young Cattlemen's Leadership Academy, targeted for beef producers ages 25 – 35. The program is designed to develop young members through industry exposure, education, and communication.

The Linda Davis YCLA consists of events designed to expose participants to leaders from all industry segments. These events include the Joint Stockman's Convention, the legislative session in Santa Fe, educational field day tours, the Mid-Year Meeting, and quarterly educational zoom calls. The seminars will allow participants to explore the cattle business further, gain crucial information, and network with fellow NMCGA members. After graduation from the program, participants have the opportunity to interview for the NCBA Young Cattlemen's Conference.

Reasons to Participate: • Acquire and strengthen leadership skills • Network with other young cattlemen and cattle producers across the state • Develop advocacy skills as they relate to the beef industry • Learn about critical issues involved with the beef industry • Get more involved with the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association.

Each year, 6 NMCGA member/beef producers are selected through an application process to participate.
